ENCHANTING MANGROVE NATURAL RESERVE

A main attraction of Al Zorah are the tidal lagoon and inland creek, with an extensive preserved mangrove forest of biologically and ecologically rich wetlands. Home to a variety of native and migratory birds, corals, fish, and indigenous flora, it is a highly sought-out tourist destination.

Meandering pathways are ideal for an exploratory journey and the clear waters around the creek are perfect for diving and kayaking to discover a colorful marine life.

THE WONDERS OF NATURE

Avicennia Marina, an endemic species more commonly known as the gray or the white mangrove, covers large swathes of the Al Zorah natural reserve. Close to 58 bird species call this ecosystem their home and are joined by over 150 more during the seasonal migration between breeding and wintering grounds.

The famed pink flamingoes can be spotted throughout the year and more so during nesting season.
